They were obliged to relinquish their hold upon the hose, which had been carried to the top of the ladder, and allowed it to fall about sixty feet to the pavement below. The fire was under control by 4 o'clock, but continued to burn for several hours later, keeping one of the engines steadily at work. The building in which the fire originated was completely gutted, the roof falling in about 4 o'clock. The building on the corner of Main and Union, owned by Joseph Lenow and occupied by H. is made plain by the statements of th employes. The colored porter says he went down into the cellar to draw a can of copal varnish, and finding it dark struck a match to light the gas. An explosion instantly took place, and how he got out of the cellar he cannot remember. Dr. Hawkins, who was sitting near the office, which is in the rear of the store on the ground floor, says he heard a noise in the cellar like the breaking of a lot of glassware, and the next moment a cloud of black smoke swept up through a rapidiy in yolome, making it unsafe to remain a moment longer. Mr. Wm. Nelson, the book-keeper, said he had just given Dr. Wilkinson the bank book, with money, checks and drafts amounting to $562.29, and placed the books in the safe, when some one said there was a fire in the cellar. He walked out from behind his desk and, noticing the smoke coming up through the grating, went toward it. up through the grating, went toward it.

the last week in October. In any event there would be no stakes offered but simply purses. The same reasons which are urged against fall and winter racing at New Orleans are applicable to Memphis, which is also busier at that season of the year than any other—a season when we have been practicing their horseback exercises for some months past, and they have acquired surprising accuracy is horseback evolutions, therefore many people will be surprised at the novelties they will exhibit on the occasion of their first horseback parade. The ceremony promises to be exceedingly entertaining. city, who have been receiving $16 per week for their work, ark out on a strik.
They ask $10, and their demand has been acceded to by but one of the bosses. One of them writes the following statement of heir joint grievances. To the Editors of the Appeal:

Among the deserving unions in Mem this we class the journeymen horse theors. If any men within the bounds of qur beloved city earn the pittance (called ealary) they receive it is these men. In the summer's heat they are forced to work ten hours a day before a blazing furnace, and for what? Ye men of wealth, pause and reflect and see the vast amount these Sinking of the Gen. Meade.
